es Editor Tony Mancuso: 217-351-5219; tmancuso@news-gazette.com

Robin Scholz/The News-Gazette Sarah Haas and her dog, Sugar, sit on the stage of her EcoMobile in Urbana earlier this month.

MOVEMENT ARTIST

SHOW ON THE ROAI

UI grad makes April pit stop in C-U following several months of touring

By MELISSA MERLI
mmeri@news-gazette.com URBANA — For the past seven months or so, movement artist Sarah Haas has been on the road, traveling, performing and living with her dog, Sugar, in her Eco-Mobile, a tiny home on wheels.
This month, though, she's parked next to the south side of the Urbana Tire Co. building at 202 S. Vine St., U.

next to the south side of the Urbana Tire Co. building at 202 S. Vine St., U.

There, from her galvanized-steel-covered moveable structure, she greets friends she made while working on a master of fine arts degree in dance at Illinois.

Perhaps more importantly, she rehearses and performs on the small stage of her Eco-Mobile and offers discussions about it and her RT and the stage of her Eco-Mobile and offers discussions about it and her RT and the small stage of her Eco-Mobile and offers discussions about it and her resembles actress Tilda Swinton, has scheduled a variety of events through April at her Eco-Mobile. Everyone is invited to participate in the last one April 29.

After she left Urbana-Champaign in early September, Haas traveled to a residency at Austin Peay University in Clarksville, Tenn. There she collaborated with students.

Then she spent three days in Ida, Tenn., at a Radical Faeries intentional community. Itell you more abut the people who live at Ida, but it's quiet here. "Haas wrote Oct. 3 on her Raw Art Tour blog. "Most of the inhabitants are off the land for a birthday party and weekend festival, and the few folks lingering behind seem to be more preoccupied with living than with hosting, which is refreshing. It makes sense to me; yet, I'll be leaving this morning with very little understanding/knowledge of the folks who live

Time in town

Following is movement artist Sarah Haas' Raw Art Tour schedule for the rest of April in Urbana. Her living-performance space is her Eco-Mobile parked on the south side of Urbana Tire Company, 202 S. Vine St., U. All the events are free and open to the public.

6 to 7 p.m. Thursday, open rehearsal.

6 to 6:30 p.m. Friday, works in pro-

■ 6 to 6:30 p.m. Friday, works in process showing.
■ 6 to 7 p.m. April 26, performance.
■ 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. April 29, performance party.
Viewers are advised to bring fold-out chairs or other seats. Haas said the open rehearsal may take the form of movement studies, photography, set design, glass mosaic work and/or costume design.
"These will be quiet contemplations," she said.
She defines performance as a

These will be quiet contemplations, she said.
She defines performance as a culmination of her works in process showings. The performance party will showcase community members of various disciplines and interests who use the stage as a platform to perform workshop and/or discuss. The scene is as varied as the participants.
Haas' website is www.sarahhaas-rawart.com.

here."
After that, Haas used her EcoMobile to camp out in the Shawnee National Forest in southern Illinois and then in Waynesville, Mo. From October through late March, she parked in Huntsville, Texas, where she worked a full-time carpentry job, continued to work on her portable home and gave a performance before she left.
Her Eco-Mobile, which she began building late last summer while still veral months of touring on the UI campus, remains a work in progress.

She did find time to insulate it while in Texas but has not yet installed solar panels, stored for now under the plywood floor.

She hopes to eventually cover the floor with papier mache; she already added another artistic touch by covering her tiny countertop with a glass mosaic.

The mobile home does not have a kitchen; Haas basically uses a large cooler as a mini-refrigerator. The Eco-Mobile has a compost tolet; Hawhen she needs to, she uses a solar shower.

While on the road she slept on the Murphy's bed in her Eco-Mobile. While in Urbana, Haas is staying with her partner.

To build her Eco-Mobile, Haas

Murphy's bed in her Eco-Mobile. While in Urbana, Haas is staying with her partner.

To build her Eco-Mobile, Haas used a lot of donated material including redwood for interior walls and cabinets. However, she bought the galvanized steel that covers the exterior.

"That was expensive," she said.

Haas and another Illinois MFA dance graduate, Hallie Aldrich, a choreographer, each built an Eco-Mobile last summer as a way to construct their own post-MFA careers. Their plan was to do residences at universities and community centers nationwide.

A Seattle native, Aldrich has parked her Eco-Mobile, which she built from modular parts, in Washington State.

"We actually want to meet uptogether and do performances and talk to the public about building these structures," Haas said.

Last year, Haas and Aldrich tried to raise money for their Eco-Mobile

Please see HAAS, G-2

CHAMPAIGN NATIVE'S LULLABY PROJECT

Broadway fixtures create relaxing tunes

1992 Central grad, friend will donate proceeds to breast cancer charities

proceeds to breast
By PAUL WOOD
Pwood@news-gazette.com
New mom Kate Dawson, a Champaign native, has come up with lullabies for anyone who will listen.
The actress and singer convinced some of the best composers and performers on Broadway to come up with lullabies in every style to contribute to her CDs.
The 1992 Champaign Centrail graduate has worked in musicals and movies in her her key and movies in her
her key and movies in her detended to the contribute of the contribute of the conMillikin University in 1996
But the production she's proudest of is her son, Ezekiel Cohen, all of 7 months old.
She's married to Jed Cohen, a former actor (a smaller part in "Home Alone") who's now a Harvard-educated Web guru.
She did a read-through of now a Harvard-educated Web guru.

She did a read-through of a Broadway play ("Parade") with Matthew Broderick, wrote a one-woman show and has worked in several films doing voice-overs.

But early in her pregnancy, she decided to embark on a major baby-oriented project with friend Jodi Glucksman.

"Over the Moon: The Broadway Lullaby Project" features two CDs with 26 songs, a hardcover book of 17 songs from the albums, an e-book encompassing the entire collection and a documentary film.

The project's revenues will film.

The project's revenues will support breast cancer charities like the Evelyn Lauder Breast Cancer Research Foundation and Young Survival Coalition, Dawson said. Composers successfully approached by Dawson and Glucksman include the world-famous Stephen Sondheim; Rupert Holmes, playwright of the Tony Award-winning "The Mystery of Edwin Drood"; Tom Kitt, a Pulitzer winner for the rock musical "Next to Normal"; Steven Schwartz, known for "Godspell" and "Wicked"; as well as such other notables as Henry Krieger with Bill Russell, Bobby Lopez with Kristen Anderson Lopez, Jill Santoriello with John Patrick Shanley, David Shire and Nona Hendryx with Marva Hicks and Charles Randolph-Wright.

Nona Hendryx with Marva Hicks and Charles Randolph-Wright.

Performers include Dawson herself, Audra McDonald, Michael Cerveris, Victoria Clark, Raul Esparza, Sutton Foster, Brian D'Arcy James, Rebecca Luker, Kelli O'Hara, Donna Murphy, Anika Noni Rose and Vanessa Williams.

Though the project package, which can be preordered at mazon.com, has commercial potential, Dawson said its reason for being is personal.

"I got pregnant and wanted to do a community project involving music and babies and motherhood," she said. "I got pregnant and wanted to do a community project involving music and babies and motherhood," she said. "I slot other lizzi, who died of press tancer (and had) two smething to honor hee something to honor he will be the most healing."

Besides the CD project, Dawson recently completed a one-woman show about a woman who argues with her self-critical and pessimistic inner voice.

She treasures the work she has done with greats such as Frank Oz, the director and voice of Yoda and Miss Piggy, and her own voice-over work,

Please see MUSIC, G-2

Cohen family Champaign native Kate Dawson, joined by her son, Ezekiel Cohen, and husband, Jed Cohen, helped spearhead the lullaby project.

studio VISIT

Melissa Mitchell, 54, Champaign

Q: How do you feel when you see on a bill-board your photo as the signature image for the Boneyard Arts Festival? A: It felt like a quiet exclamation point. Quiet, because I was alone in my car when I first saw it.

it.
Q: Are you going to show your work during the Boneyard?
A: I'll be at five venues, which is why my todo list took me all morning to compile.
Q: What venues?
A: I will have a solo exhibition at the 40 North 88 West offices (106 S. Neil St., C). As the Boneyard signature artist, I was invited to show my work there. It will be mostly digital prints on metal panels and assemblage pieces. Also, our yard signature artist, I was invited to snow my work there. It will be mostly digital prints on metal panels and assemblage pieces. Also, our studio suite (518) in the Lincoln Building (44 E. Main St., C) will be open. And Claire Billing, Sherri Stinson and I will show mixed-media shrines on a window ledge inside Ratio Architects (10 E. Chester St., C). Then I organized for the L.D.E.A. Store (28 E. Springfield Ave., C) a two-day event called Persephone's Treasures. Q: What's that?

A: It's a spring bazaar hosted by the L.D.E.A. Store at the L.D.E.A. Store, featuring a dozen artists who create using recycled, reused and repurposed materials. It'll have a festive atmosphere with refreshments.

Q: Where's your fifth Boneyard venue?

A: I'll have at least one piece in "The Something You Love" show at the Art Coop Gallery at Melissa Mitchell displays some of her creations in her downtown Champaign studio.

Lincoln Square in Urbana

Lincoln Square in Urbana.

Q: Aren't you the communications director for the I.D.E.A. Store?

A: Yes, since the summer of 2010. I've volunteered at the store practically since it opened.

Q: Don't you have a background in arts writing?

A: Yes, for 30 years I worked at the University of Illinois News Bureau, promoting the arts. I retired in 2009.

Q: Did you ever take art courses?

A: I did take art and design courses at the UI for a year, circa late 1970s, when I temporarily switched majors from English literature to interior design. And through the years, I've completed courses and workshops in photography, ceramics, printmaking and, most recently, mixed media, combining painting and photography. Most of my life, whenever I was "supposed to" be writing, I'd find myself making art and vice versa. That's the great thing about being retired: There are no more supposed to's. And there are no rules or schedules to keep. I love being the master of my own destiny.

Q: What kind of art do you make mostly?

A: For quite some time, I've made assemblage art. I also have had an interest in photography, off and on, for more than 30 years. Some of my photographs were published recently in specs, a nonprofit journal for the arts published annually by Rollins College in Winter Park, Fla.

When I first rented the studio space downtown, I was interested in doing more painting because the light is so fantastic in that space. I wasn't even going to bring all my collections and odd bits I used in assemblage art from my home basement studio. But an artist friend said, "Take everything there." As I began to unload things I didn't even know I had anymore, all sorts of ideas and assemblages resulted.

Q: Do you call your art-making business anything?

A: I call it ACME Elfworks. The name comes from a couple of places. ACME means a place that makes everything, so I thought that was appropriate. And it's also a nod to the Lincoln Building, which has a very noir feeling.

Also, some of my assemblages tend to have a slightly creepy feeling, so I like to say it's nowning intt makes in the property of the property

ENTERTAINMENT

MARY WYCZOLKOWSKI: THEATER REVIEW

'Murder' an enjoyable date night experience

At one point during the play "Mur-der by Natural Causes," adapted for the stage by Tim Kelly from the film of the same name by Richard Levinson and William Link, a char-acter is driven to attempted murder after finding himself on the sour end after finding himself on the sour end of a poor theater review.

Let's hope my words do not sting as harshly.
That's not to say that my review of the Parkland College Department of Fine and Applied Arts production of "Murder by Natural Causes," directed by Abigail Manekin and running through April 22, was ever intended to come across harshly, but it may be possible that the show's subject matter played a role in convincing me to be a tad softer.
Though there were some obvipossible that ter played a role in content be a tad softer.

Though there were some obviously interest among the properties of the content of ous opening-night jitters among the

If you go
What: Parkland College Theatre
presents "Murder by Natural Causes"
When: 7:30 p.m. Thursday-Saturday; 3 p.m. April 22
Where: Parkland Theatre, 2400 W.

Where: Parkland Theatre, 2400 W. Bradley Ave. C. Tickets: $1 4 for adults; $12 for students and seniors (55+); all tickets are half-price Thursday More information/reservations: theatre.parkland.edu/players both on stage and behind the scenes, the show as a whole provided a nice, lighthearted evening for any in attendance. The set was beautifully constructed and provided an interesting, realistic and detailed backdrop for a

Monty Joyce, in his Parkland The arre debut, capitalizes on his ability to play arrogant and maligned with the best of them, and he was a points the only element holding the ity to play arrogant and maligned with the best of them, and he was at points the only element holding the ensemble together.

Zach Benner and AJ Curry both display obvious talent in their performances as the other two centralized characters, but there was something intangibly off about the performances, be it Benner's affable undertone that belies his character's cunning nature or Curry's attempt at ice-queen coolness that came across, on more than one occasion, as flat.

The minor characters (stretched less thinly?) fared far better. Of special delight was Susan Sheahan's return to the stage after nearly 20 years away to focus on raising a samily.

As a dimwitted but genuine house-keeper, Sheahan struck just the right balance between loopy and lovable, delivering her lines with a sugar sweetness that is far harder to pull off than one might think.

Also back from a nearly double-decade hiatus is Scott Walker, who has been in several area productions since "coming out of retirement" last year.

wear.
Walker, who will soon move to Chiwalker, who will soon move to Chroago, is a talented actor and worthy of an audience's attention when on stage. I sincerely hope that Walker continues his theater work in the big city as he has the talent capable of standing up to a more demanding and intense caliber.

Stefanie Senior, Randy Offner

regal sounding moniker is somehow trumped by her character's, Corne-lia Carrington) all gave solid perfor-mances and were able to provide a sense of a deeper character existing sense of a deeper character existing despite limited time on stage.

Overall, a pleasant evening out at the theater for my guest and myself, with enough humor to keep us happy, plot twists to keep us entertained and talking points to discuss in the car on the ride home.
The run time of about 90 minutes was also suited to fitting comfortably into our evening without dominating it, and we both left the theater with energy (and time!) to spare for the remainder of date night.

Mary Wyczolkowski is a freelance writer from Champaign.

KRANNERT APPEARANCE

Famed violinist conducting London-based orchestra

By MELISSA MERLI
mmeril@news_gazette.com URBANA — Famed American violinist Joshua Bell won't only be playing the violin on Thursday evening at Krannert Center for the Performing Arts. He'll also be conducting the Academy of St.
Martin in the Fields, a London-based chamber orchestra.

He was named its music director last years of the Marriner, who founded the orchestra in 1958.
"I have felt a particular affection for the Academy of St. Martin in the Fields ever since I made my very first recording with them under the baton of Sir Neville Marriner when I was just 18 years old," Bell said in a statement released last year by the ensemble. "Since then, the orchestra has come to feel like family to me, as we have shared so many cherished moments together both musical and personal. Over the past several years, I have begun to explore the great symphonic repertoire with the Academy of St. Martin in the Fields and I am thrilled that I will have the opportunity to continue this collaboration under the official title of music director."

At 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Krannert, Bell and the orchestra will perform works by Beethoven: "The Coriolan Overture," Op. 62; the Violin Concerto in D Major, Op. 61, with original cadenzas by Bell; and Symphony No. 7 in A Major, Op. 92. The program, of course, is subject to change.

The concert is sold out. People wanting to attend may get their names on a waiting list. Call 333-6280.

Bell and orchestra began a 15-city tour on Wednesday at Avery Fisher Hall in New York. While leading the ensemble from his violin, ne also will serve as soil to the from his origin, ne also will serve as soil to the from his origin, ne also will serve as soil to the from his origin, and his origin, and it is a like the from his origin, and I think this is a really nice way to do it. As the years go by, I might occasionally drop the violin and see how it goes just leading the academy," he said.

However, Bell, who grew up in Bloomington, Ind., and studied at Indiana University, told Mermelstein he won't give with the violin. "What drew me to the violin was mastering the instrument technically, which I'm continuing to do. You want to push boundaries, to not always be in your comfort zone. If you don't, you get stale. So you have to find areas of growth. For some, it's commissioning new pieces—and I want to do more of that, too—but this is a way I can challenge myself and do something new."

The Academy of St. Martin in the Fields, led by famed American violinist Joshua Bell, above, began a 15-city tour last week. They will perform at Krannert Center for the Performing Arts on Thursday evening.

Arcadia Chamber Players will perform

By The News-Gazette
URBANA — The Arcadia
Chamber Players will present their spring concert 2012 at 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the studio of Debra Sutter, 306 E.
Sherwin Circle.
The program will feature two trios by Bohuslav Martinu and Alfred Uhl and a Brahms piano quartet. Guest violinists Aaron Jacobs and Laura Hourt will join flutist Mary Chapman, clarinetist Marina Antoline, violist Jieyeon Kim-Schleicher, cellist

Amy Flores and Sutter, a pia nist. st. Tickets (including coffee and

Tickets (including coffee and dessert) are $15 for adults, $10 for students and senior citizens, and $7 for children younger than 12. Reservations are required as seating is limited: call 384-0568.

The concert will be Anto-line's last with Arcadia before she takes an overseas teaching position at the American School of Yaounde in Camer-

HAAS

Continued from G-1

projects. They received a little, plus some volunteer help in building their structures. Haas said last week, though, that it's been hard to find funding for her Eco-Mobile because she remains busy finishing it and working day jobs when she can. "It's something that will continue but takes a lot of time and energy to organize." She also hasn't used her pullout stage much; she supports it with sawhorses. Because it's so with sawhorses. Because it's so small, she is unable to do large leaps and movements on it.

That's OK, though.

"For me, I do site-specific works on it's fine to dance on a small spot," she said. "It's really good for a meeting place. I use mine as a platform for a lot of different things."

After she leaves Urbana, Haas will perform May 4 in Chicago as part of the Columbia College's Manifest Urban Arts Festival. Then she will head for the $55 Gallery in Detroit. Her life remains open after that, at least for now.

She had been trying out con-ppts in her journals, and the ner voice "shot down every

PETALS & PAINTINGS

Opening reception set for Friday

By The News-Gazette
CHAMPAIGN — Krannert Art Museum's 20th annual Petals & Paintings gala-opening reception will take place from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Friday at the museum.
Champaign florist Rick Orr curates Petals & Paintings;
it features floral arrangements created by award-winning regional floral designers in response to works of art selected by Orr from the museum's permanent collection.
The floral designs remain on view through the weekend, with docent-led tours beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday.
The museum will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. Petals & Paintings, which falls on the University of Illinois Moms' Weekend, is one of the museum's biggest events in terms of attendance.

gest events in terms of attendance.

The Krannert Art Museum Council hosts the gala-opening reception, during which guests view the floral displays as they enjoy art and live music. This year, the music will be by the piano-based Kevin Hart Trio and the cocktails and light hors d'oeuvres by Michaels' Catering.

There also will be a silent auction of garden-themed items and a raffle of "Tall Hat" (2005), a pigment print by New York-based photographer William Wegman, who received a master's of fine arts degree from the UI in 1967. He became famous after he began photographing his first weimaraner, named Man Ray.

Raffle tickets for the Wegman print are $25 each or five for $100. The tickets are available for purchase in the museum's office on the second floor of the museum and will be sold at the gala. The winning ticket will be drawn at the gala. The winner need the present to win the properties of the properties for the opening reception are $75. To make reservations, call 244-0516 or enail kam@illinois.edu.

Proceeds from the event support the museum's exhibitions and educational programming, which is free and open to the public in part thanks to this annual fundraiser.

'Tall Hat,' a pigment print by University of Illinois graduate William Wegman, will be raffled at the Krannert Art Museum's 20th annual Petals & Paintings gala-opening which includes an intense moaning scene in "The Stepford Wives."

MUSIC

Continued from G-1

RANTOUL

"Tm an executive assistant by day, and with the baby, I don't audition much anymore," she said.
Frustrating auditions were an inspiration for her one-woman show, she said.
"I have an inner voice in my head, a voice that always puts me down. The play disarms it," she said. "We have that voice that keeps us stuck. I was so tired of almost getting the roles, tired of leaving town for roles and I was tired of doing shows I didn't like."

Theater group seeks input for

By The News-Gazette
RANTOUL — The Rantoul Theater Group is accepting submissions for potential plays and directors for its 2013 season.
Anyone interested is asked to contact Rod Sickler at rodimages@aol.com by June 15.
For more information, contact Sickler at 403-1790 or 8981972.

2013 season

cepts in ner journal, inner voice "shot down every idea I came up with."

But she said that same voice "makes me work and strive for challenges," so the play is mostly humorous and not a downer. "I wanted it to be funny, but I also wanted people to be touched. Art makes me feel like I'm not alone," Dawson said. "We all have some of the same feelings."

feelings."
And the Lullaby Project ful-

And the Lullaby Project ful-fills a different need.
"I feel the most alive when I'm singing," she said. "I can feel what I feel in the most authentic way when I sing."
There will be a launch party May 7 in New York.

126 W. Church St. Champaign Survival He Clart.com Survival He Clark Surviv

©12:25, 2:40, 4:55, 7:10, 9:25
FUISATL SI 17:41-9) 12:35, 2:50, 5:05, 7:20, O30 CHIVAT LS 11:50
O3MERICAN REUNION (R)
11:30, 2:05, 4:40, 7:15, 9:50
Ø12:00, 2:36, 5:10, 7:46, 10:15
OSALOMO FISHING IN THE YEMEN (PG-13
ERICAN I S1:29, 1:46, 4:10, 6:35, 9:00

11:00, 3:00, 7:00 RROR, MIRROR (PG) 11:00, 1:25, 3:50, 6:15, 8:40 FRI/SAT LS 11:05

(S) 3D WRATH OF THE TITANS (PG-13)

(PG-13)

©1:05, 4:05, 7:05, 10 21 JUMP STREET (R)

21 JUMP SIMEEI (m) 11:55, 2:25, 4:55, 7:25, 9:55 DR. SEUSS' THE LORAX (PG)

THE DUKE OF UKE AND HIS NOVELTY ORCHESTRA

CD release party will be held at Highdive

By The New-Gazette
CHAMPAIGN — The Duke of Uke and His Novelty Orchestra will have a CD release party at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Highdive, 51 Main St., C.
The new CD, "April's

part vocal harmonies, ukulele, violin, tuba, saxophones, electric bass, rock drums and Latin percussion.

The band focuses on collaborative songwriting and weaves together King's lyricism with vocal harmonies, buoyant instrumentation and swinging rhythms.

The ensemble has been fea-The ensemble has been featured on stages throughout the country, including Musik-fest in Bethlehem, Pa., Milwaukee's Pride Fest main stage, New York City's Cakeshop, Little Rock's Stickyz Rock n' Roll Chicken Shack, New Orleans' Allways Lounge and Chicago's Quenchers Saloon.

Locally, the group has played in the lobby of Krannert Center for the Performing Arts and at the Pygmalion and the C-U Folk and Roots festivals. The band also has opened for the Champaign-Urbana Symphony Orchestra and local house shows.

SPRING INTO

 \mathbf{ARR} • Screen Repair/

Replacement
Patio Glass Doors
Insulated Units
Mirrors
Storm Windows

FAST TURN AROUND Property Management Groups Welcome

406 E. Anthony Dr., Urbana • (217)367-4046 Mon-Fri 8am-5pm • sales@arrowglass.com

Auto • Residential • Commercial

Competitive Pricing • 24 Hour Emergency Service

BY NATURAL CAUSES By Richard Levinson and William Link • Adapted by Tim Kelly Directed by Abigail Manekin April 11, 13, 14, 19, 20, 21 at 7:30pm April 22 at 3pm ~ PARKLAND Reservations: 217/351-2528 • www.parkland.edu/theatre